

ABSTRACT OF THE DISCLOSURE

In a pump employing a bellows, individual members are formed from resins and pump components including a fitted assembly formed by fitting plural members with each other form a structure unit which is tightly inserted in an external cover and constrained on the opposite ends thereof for come-off prevention. Thus, the distortion or deformation of the members during assembly is obviated and hence, a good sealing performance is achieved.